Angela Lartigue

Although Angela looked about two or three years old and wore a size 2T when she came to us in November 2012, she was eight years old. Before moving into the CHOAIDS home, she lived with her godmother, whom she knew as her mother. Angela spent many months receiving treatment for TB/HIV co-infection at Grace Children’s Hospital. When she first came to the house, she was suffering from malnutrition, she had an extended belly, and a severe ear infection which still requires periodic visits to a private ENT. Angela was never in school before joining the CHOAIDS family. On the day she arrived at the house, after eating a large plate of food, she joined the other children in the multipurpose room, picked up a book, held it upside down and pretended to read. Fortunately, she has been able to attend school since January 2013 and has learned to read and write, and is often at the top of her class. Angela is brilliant; she loves reading, and playing with dolls.

I would like to support Angela with a _____ monthly or annually:
